

Natural Channel Cost Estimating: A Creek Contractor's View
Jared Reinders¹,
¹R&M Construction

What does an estimator see when he looks at a natural channel construction project? And how does an estimator account for the uncertainties encountered in a natural channel project before beginning construction? This presentation will discuss the key items of a natural channel design that an estimator is most concerned with when looking at a project. Suggestions will be given to Owners and Consultants for methods to save costs, and recommendations will be given on how to receive fair and competitive pricing from their contractor's.

Biography

As lead estimator at R&M Construction, Jared has been involved in estimating and managing hundreds of projects, including many kilometers of natural channels.